Dear Shayla:

Congratulations on completing the University of Waterloo's Certificate in University Teaching. This program, offered jointly by Graduate Studies and Postdoctoral Affairs and the Centre for Teaching Excellence (CTE), is designed to help graduate students hone their university-level teaching and oral and written communication skills.

In completing the Certificate, you have accomplished the following: attended a minimum of six instructional development workshops; written a reflective, application-oriented response paper for a minimum of 4 workshops; submitted a teaching dossier; completed a research project on some issue regarding university teaching; and had your teaching evaluated at least twice by a trained observer.

We trust that your extra effort to complete the Certificate has increased both your skills and confidence in the classroom. We extend our best wishes for your future career.

Sincerely,

Donna Ellis, PhD
